Water Control Board Adopts Regulations For Dam Safety

Regulations for safety of dams were adopted March 16, 1978 by the State Water Control Board, carrying out a law passed by the 1976 General Assembly. They will take effect July 1, 1978.

The rules apply to both private and public impounding structures and reservoirs. But several categories of dams were exempted from the board's regulations in accordance with provisions of the 1976 amendment to chapter 8 of title 62.1 in the Code of Virginia.

The regulations call for "proper and safe design, construction, maintenance, and operation of impounding structures not exempt from the law to the extent required for the protection of public safety."

They also specify that they do not "relieve the owner or operator of any impoundment or impounding structure of any legal duties, obligations, or liabilities."

In a discussion before the seven-member citizen panel adopted the rules, chairman Warren L. Braun of Harrisonburg stressed that the state board "has no liability for any failtures of dams or for deaths that may result." The structures' owners have the entire responsibility for their safety and for any consequences if they fail, Braun pointed out.

Also, the regulations note, the board's approval of any proposals for dams will not be an okay "to capture or store waters."

Structures exempted by the General Assembly's "Impoundment of Surface Waters" act are in six groups: dams licensed by the State Corporation Commission; dams owned or licensed by the United States government; certain dams designed, constructed or maintained under specifications of the Soil Conservation Service (a branch of the U. S. Department of Agriculture) and dams primarily for agricultural purposes; dams for retaining mine water or silt approved pursuant to section 45.1-222 of the Virginia Code; obstructions in a canal for raising or lowering water; and dams impounding less than 100 acre-feet capacity and not more than 25 feet in depth.

Approximately 185 existing dams in Virginia probably will be affected by the regulations, the board's staff counted. The initial cost to owners of dams for the inspection and evaluation phase of the safety program is estimated to be in the order of $1,375,000.

"The cost of rehabilitation of structures, if needed, would impose additional costs of unknown magnitude," the agency noted.

The regulations require an owner to utilize professional services in the preparation of plans and schedules for operation and maintenance and in the performance of "Any engineering analysis required to comply with these regulations." The owner will bear all costs.

The regulations spell out general requirements for planning, designing, and constructing dams. Included are emergency spillways, outlet works, and drains.

Other parts of the regulations specify procedures for making applications to build impounding structures, submitting final designs, determining geologic and hydrologic conditions, making inspections, and preparing plans for operation and maintenance.

The rules also set out requirements for existing dams and those under construction before July 1, 1978, the regulations' effective date.

Provisions for hearings, enforcement against violations, and investigations of complaints about unsafe conditions are also made in the regulations.

Before a dam will be built, the prospective owner must file a statement with the State Water Control Board staff specifying the location, height, purpose, impoundment capacity, and depth of the proposed impounding structure. Also, both a preliminary report covering a variety of conditions in the locality and a final design report will be required before a construction permit is issued by the board.

The state panel will issue a permit through its staff within 60 days after it receives acceptable plans and specifications and the final design report. If the documents are not satisfactory, the board will tell why within 60 days and explain what changes are required.

The State Water Control Board asked the General Assembly for $250,000 for use during the next two fiscal years to administer the regulations and conduct the dam safety program. The legislature did not make an appropriation for this purpose, however.

Reenactment of Sayler's Creek Battle Set For April 7-9

A re-enactment of the last battle of the War Between the States will be held April 7-9 by hundreds of members of reactivated Civil War military units from across the nation at Sayler's Creek Battlefield State Park, 12 miles east of Farmville.

The event is being organized and hosted by Company D of the 11th Virginia Infantry Regiment, a unit that has been reactivated from one that originally existed during the War of 1861-1865. The Virginia Division of Parks will sponsor the event set for the second week end in April.

The troops that will participate in the re-enactment are coming from the states of Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, Illinois, Wisconsin, Florida, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, North Carolina, Indiana and Virginia. All the troops participating will be in authentic uniforms of the Union and Confederate Armies complete with the regulation equipment of a Civil War soldier. This event will involve nearly five hundred participants and several thousand spectators. It will be one of the largest gatherings of Civil War troops and units since the Civil War Centennial events during the 1960's.

The authentic uniforms and equipment of the units will compliment the surrounding countryside at Sayler's Creek which has changed little since the battle on April 6, 1865. The events of the week end will carry everyone back to the day the little valley of Sayler's Creek echoed with the thunder of thousands of muskets, cannon, and the battle of two armies fighting and dying only 72 hours before General Lee was forced to surrender the Army of Northern Virginia at Appomattox.

While the troops will be encamped on the battlefield the entire weekend, the actual camps will not be open to the public. The Hillsman House, used as a field hospital that bloody day in April, 1865, will be open to visitors the entire week end. Hostesses in Civil War period dress will be in the Hillsman House to welcome visitors to the battlefield where they will interpret how the women back home supported the men in the armies. The public is invited to visit the Hillsman House on Saturday and Sunday, April 8 & 9. On Sunday, April 9, the actual battle reenactment will begin at 2 p.m. to which the public is cordially invited. It is suggested that all visitors coming to see the reenactment arrive at the battlefield by 1:30 p.m. as the road to the battlefield (route 617) will be closed to traffic at 1:50 p.m. to assure a more period atmosphere.

Sayler's Creek Battlefield Historical State Park may be reached by taking State Route 307 (connecting highway between US 360 and 460, Farmville) to either Route 616 or 617.

Perform a death-defying act.

Have regular medical check-ups.

Gordon Ford To Represent Appomattox In A.A.U. Boxing

Gordon E. Ford, age 20, will represent Appomattox County in the A.A.U. (Amateur Athletic Union) State Championship Boxing Tournament at Virginia Beach tonight, April 6th.

Ford is making history for Appomatox as he is the first fighter ever to represent Appomattox in an A.A.U. sanctioned boxing tournament. He is in excellent physical condition and has all the credentials to win a state championship. If Ford wins his match Thursday night, he will go out to fight again Friday night and hopefully Saturday night in the final event.

The boxing program in Appomattox is sponsored by the Appomattox Jaycees and the Town of Appomattox. Marco Stone is the instructor.

A tentative date for the first boxing match to be held at the Appomattox depot has been set for April 15th.

On April 21st, Junior Olympic fighters who qualify, those under 16 years of age, will also travel to Virginia Beach to participate in competition held there.

Ford is married to the former Robin Carter and they have a daughter, Christy. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ford of Appomattox.

Girls' Tennis

The ACHS girls tennis team opens their season with a match against Rustburg April 3rd. The Raideretes have six returning players from last season: Rindy Lawson, senior; Sharon Bryant, Sue Lawson, Teresa Lettner and Susan Smith, all juniors; and Kim Hipps, sophomore. There are five players new to the team: Nadine Bugg and June Harris, juniors; Pam Guill, sophomore; and Dana Ford and Bobbie McFaden, freshman.

The Appomattox team lost only one player last year, Teresa Harris, through graduation. The Raiderette team is stronger and more aggressive this season in their play. This will be the third year of tennis at ACHS. Each year the program is progressing and improving. However, the district competition is growing stronger, also. Although the Appomattox team is relatively young with only one senior member, they are an experienced team. Their record last season was 1-6 and fourth place in the district. This season the Raiderettes are looking to improve that record. Lucy Harris is coaching the team for her second year. Jayne Doss and Tracy Rush are managers for the Raiderettes.

FRCC Scrambled Mixed Doubles Tennis Tourney Planned

Saturday and Sunday, April 29 and April 30th, will see the Falling River Country Club netters battling for top honors in this season-opening classic.

Players are to sign up individually at the Club or call Jackie Smith, 352-5733, to register.

Teams will be established by drawing names. Deadline for sign-up is April 26, 6 p.m.

TAX INSTRUCTIONS CAN SAVE TIME AND MONEY

RICHMOND, Va. - One of the most time-honored American pastimes is trying to think of ways to save on income taxes. For those who are interested, the Internal Revenue Service has a suggestion: read the instructions.

The instructions furnished annually by the IRS with the tax forms they mail out have always been a useful reference for taxpayers looking for legal deductions, filing hints, and changes in the law. This year especially, the IRS says their instructions are must reading.

The Tax Reform Act of 1976 and the Tax Reduction and Simplification Act of 1977 have produced a large number of changes in the law. In addition, many of these changes have resulted in overall simplification of the tax filing process.

Many taxpayers who carefully read the instructions may decide that this year they can do their own tax return, discovering new ways to cut their tax bill legally in the process. In addition, because of the new zero bracket amount which replaces the standard deduction, they may be able to save time by using the 1040A form.

Taxpayers who need additional forms and instructions can visit or call the IRS to obtain them.

Senior Captains To Head Raiderettes in Softball

These four senior Raiderettes have been chosen Captains of the 1978 A.C.H.S. Girls Softball Team. From left, Berneta Moore, fourth year on team, led team in home runs, RBI and runs scored last year, plays outfield; Roni Franklin, fourth year on team, lettered three years, plays second base and pitches; Roxie Martin, fourth year on team, lettered two years, plays shortstop, has good power at the plate; Connie Murray, fourth year on team, made 1st team All-District as sophomore and 2nd team All-District last year, good defensive outfielder and has power at the plate.

Losing only two starters from a team that won 12 and lost 8 in 1977, Coach Mary Tolley is looking for another excellent season. Her biggest task will be finding replacements for Wanda Phelps on the mound and Teresa Almond behind the plate. Junior Susan Godsey and Freshmen Stephanie Ferguson, Susan Handy, Karen Johnson, Robin Martin and Susan Martin will be trying to make the starting line-up.

The Raiderettes play at Brookville tomorrow (April 7) and open at home Tuesday playing host to William Campbell at 4:00 p.m.
